

Divestiture Video Script

Opening: To my global Elanco colleagues, today is a big day for Elanco. Today, Lilly has announced its intention to divest the remaining 80.2 percent ownership in Elanco through an exchange offer. I want to share my reflections on this important day and give you a preview of what to expect.

Important day: This is a planned next step in our journey to becoming fully independent. Lilly's decision to take this step now underscores its confidence we have the right strategy, and even more so, their confidence in all of you and your disciplined execution and delivery against our goals. While we expect to soon become fully separate companies, very little changes today. Lilly will continue to support Elanco through Transitional Service Agreements, which will help us transition to a completely independent company. Most importantly, continue your focus executing against your first quarter outcomes.

Important decisions: The exchange offer must include a minimum of 20 market trading days. During this time, I'll be back on the road meeting with institutional investors and ensuring we secure the right, long-term investors in Elanco.

Debt of Gratitude: I want to take this moment to thank the entire Lilly organization for their support of Elanco throughout our 64-year history ... especially during this last decade as they supported our growth and transformation to a more diversified, global company with the size and scope to successfully operate independently.

Now let's do what we do best and what we have full control over - focus on our customers and deliver on our essential wins.

Thank you ... for all you do for Elanco.
